

It builds confidence
and character.

Character. Confidence. Leadership. That's Army JROTC training. And while nothing worthwhile is ever easy, uncovering the leadership qualities and personal skills already living within you pays off big time. Both in the present — and in the future. JROTC helps you discover the quiet confidence and inner strength that make goals reality.

It's like playing on a winning team.

Team work. That's the feeling in JROTC. All members working together toward the same goals. A friendly push when you need it – a pat on the back when you deserve it. Then returning the favor. Because when one team member succeeds, the whole team does. It's a different kind of peer pressure.

It's more than a regular class.

While JROTC is given during regular high school hours, it is not taught like a regular class. Sure, you'll learn the basics — history, government, technology awareness, and current events — but every lesson is geared toward building leadership and personal skills. You'll understand how to motivate others, while strengthening your own ability to study, take tests, and interview for jobs. Real skills you can use. Furthermore, extracurricular activities like drill team and color guard deepen your self-respect and confidence. And should you attend JROTC summer camp, you'll train on confidence courses, play team sports, and learn land navigation and water safety techniques. As a JROTC cadet you are under NO obligation to join the military. Nor do we promote the military lifestyle. JROTC simply utilizes proven military skills to help you develop and improve your self-discipline, confidence and pride in ways not usually offered in school.

It can't fit
in a textbook.
